Blue Thumb fish collections are a big job—but a fun and educational job! Volunteers from Tulsa University joined Caleb Thayer (new intern, left) and Bill DeShazo (right) to see what fish could be found in Lost Creek, Payne County. One fish that could not escape the crafty collectors was this white bass!

The Blue Thumb training held in Geary brought in not only local volunteers, but those from as far away as Seminole, Oklahoma! At right, Condry Carnott develops some "expertise" at reading phosphate levels.

Nicole Norris teaches students about the importance of stream and lake macroinvertebrates at a fishing clinic held last month in the Haskell County Conservation District.

The East Woods County Conservation District sponsored a Youth Conservation Expo that brought in over 200 children and adults. Blue Thumb pollution prevention demonstrations fascinated attendees, as did the soil painting, corn grinding, track making, and skins and skulls.
